Hammo'ad: The Appointed Time Rick L Wills

Hammo'ad means "the appointed times." Its first reference is from Torah as the prescribed times for the Holy Festivals and Sabbath. This word was repeatedly used in the Salkinson-Ginsberg, "Hebrew New Testament," when referring to events in the Gospels of the Messiah. This Gospel publication is an English translation from that Hebrew text. It is also formulated as a combined narrative from the four Gospels as a single testimony. Along with this it is arranged with an historical order of their events. As such it permits the reader to better conceptualize the outlay of the Messiah's ministry. For comparative purposes, each verse is posted with its corresponding text from the Aramaic-Peshitta and Hebrew-Delitzsch New Testaments. Both of which are posted herein as Hebrew script. The purpose for their inclusion is to further emphasize the Jewish nature of this Gospel narrative.
