Starting from the Southeast Asia and heading to the north and west, the author travels and writes on the way. This book is the new collection of photographic essays written by Li Zishu, a well-received Malaysian Chinese writer. With exquisite words and attractive photos, she records what she has seen and thought all around the world. The snow in Beijing, the church chimes in an English town, the charming sea breeze in Rio de Janeiro... Travel is a process of gaining scenery and self-redemption for her. In walking, she gradually becomes the one loved by her soul.
